

Walk the Art Walk in Torrance

Murals are one of our great loves in Torrance. Inspiration truly waits around almost every corner and now you'll know just where to find it. With 400+ eateries, 10 (and counting) breweries and a booming art scene, creativity is shaping a transformative tapestry in Torrance, weaving even more fun into the fabric of the city. Check-out this insta-worthy collection of murals that everyone will like.

1 Bluestem Hotel Mural

Traci C. Adams – “Sanctuary in the South Bay”
This visual oasis spans 75 feet and depicts Torrance Beach, the Madrona Marsh Preserve and Nature Center and more. Along the bottom edges, you'll find 142 illustrations of iconic Torrance history done in Adam's signature tattoo style.

2 Bicycle Mural

Alex Poli and Jaime Reyes – “Untitled Mural”
Riders reign in this large mural that spans the entire parking lot, painted in 1969. The mural is untitled, so you're welcome to have fun creating your own name.

3 Kent Twitchell Mural

Kent Twitchell – “Six Los Angeles Artists”
Artist Kent Twitchell is most famous for his murals of celebrity portraits around Los Angeles. This mural is intended to be an homage to artists, who are his friends from Otis College of Art & Design, but also a pun on the employability of artists.

4 Kobe Bryant Mural

Mike Trujillo – “Through the Years”
Burger City Grill owner, Efthemios Tsiboukas, known as “EAT,” is a HUGE Kobe Bryant fan, and took advantage of the long wall on the back side of his building to paint the progression of Kobe's career – even acknowledging the coveted Oscar he won for his animated short, “Dear Basketball.” He also owns two EAT Fantastic restaurants – each featuring a Kobe mural. However, BCG in Torrance – being home to where EAT was born and raised – he wanted that mural to be extra special.

5 Look Your Best Mural

Lorenzo Rams – “Look Your Best”
A satire on the over-emphasized importance of beauty or a friendly reminder to put your best self forward? We'll let you decide when you take in this larger-than-life mural.

6 Louis Zamperini Mural

David Flores – “Louis Zamperini”
David Flores uses his graphic style to reinterpret popular images familiar to his audience. This large-scale piece depicts Torrance hometown hero, Louis Zamperini – a legend, an Olympic distance runner – a legend, an Olympic distance runner and a World War II veteran.

7 Red Car Mural

Artist Unknown – “Red Car Mural”
Boldly colorful with strong red and orange hues, this mural represents Southern California's mass transit of the day – Red Cars. Workers and travelers alike hopped on these big Red Cars bound for Torrance! In fact, when establishing the town, Jared Sidney Torrance first arranged to have a Red Car line come to Torrance.

8 TAM Mural

Jan van der Ploeg – “Untitled 2021”
Known for his impactful graphic style, this Dutch artist gave the Torrance Art Museum a brand-new exterior look. His expressive, yet simple art can be seen in public spaces around the world and we're thrilled that list includes Torrance.
